

What is utopia? Utopia is actually a greek word which literally means "no-place". So, this 'utopia' world would be something imaginary because it does/will not exist. The life as we know it would be very different.

Nowadays, there is a lot of waste of energy, waste of materials, anarchy, violence. Instead, the ideal world should be material and energy efficient. Harmony should be the main 'ingredient' of the whole community and violence should be absent.

First of all, people should live in harmony with nature. Buildings should be part of the nature and their design and size should be harmonized to their surrounding environment. A great example is the Monterey Bay Shores resort. Energy efficient systems should be able to utilize all available renewable energy (e.g. solar/water /wind/geothermal energy). Vehicles should also share the same characteristics with buildings, thus being environment friendly. Then, there would be no need for energy from fossil fuel or nuclear plants.

Community should be organized in a way that everyone is equal and with the same rights. There would be no different social classes. People either they are workers or politicians should share the same opportunities in life. Health and Education should be the most important factors in the society. Law would be (almost) absent because in an ideal world there would be no inequities and violence.

Moreover, there would be no need for money. Economy would exist only in terms of trading. People would not need money because everything would be free for everyone. At that point goods would not have any interest for people and they will start to obtain mental skills.

Finally, mental power would improve dramatically and people would be able to think and process information in a way that is inconceivable. Eventually the new 'super-human' race will become reality.
