

Project Utopia

Utopia refers to an ideally perfect place that manages to provide a society where the moral, political and social aspects offer pleasant conditions and quality of life. Keeping this in mind but in a more fabled and dreaming way, we could just try to imagine how would it be if we all were invisible, like floating spirits. There wouldn't be any physical differences, skin color, size, nationality, political aspiration or even material discrepancies. But, we are humans and we need to keep being pragmatics in order to be part of the actual society.

For creating a game you need rules. If you do not try to understand and learn them, then not only that you won't be able to play it, but you will most probably lose game after game. This also applies in society. You have to comply with the rules, the rights and the law in order to be civilized and live in a proper community.

An environment where everyone feels in harmony with himself can be associated with an ideal society. Also, all the duties and obligations should be seen as goals for a healthy future even if we do not always share the same ideals or take the same road. But for this, the society must be capable of offering a decent life with qualified education and institutions, work possibilities, medical resources, respect and equal rights. The system also plays an important role, as it gathers together all the institutions that form the basis of the society. All the people should have a well known place in society gained with work and devotion, but in the same time shouldn't exist anymore the problem of famine, finding a job, a home or begging for money.

The moral values in a society come from the way in which each of us acts. As long as our actions and our desire of ascension do not affect in a negative way the evolution of others, we may help in developing an ideal society.
